Can you tell which of these men drive International Trucks?

If you could monitor their operation or be busy if you had called to get more truck drivers so we did before the new International Trucks were designed.

Then you'd know that nothing makes truck drivers happier than a comfortable, easy to handle truck. You'd know why the heavy drivers wear are built like new International. And you'd know that the choice makes those drivers the most men drive a new International Truck!

You could also monitor our operation if you checked these drivers' trucks. You'd find that each truck has these International Truck features:

For the happiest time of a girl's life...WESTCLOX!

Every woman has her special time, a Westclox has measured the golden hours of romantic happy moments. How true that, like a wedding present expressing combined good wishes, few things are more memorable than the gift of some Westclox. From Westclox's wide array of spring-driven, and electric clocks we suggest five which fill a place and a purpose in any new home.

GREENWICH ELECTRIC ALARM (above) will start their new life off on time. A handsome one Westclox with a rich mahogany-finish wood case, pleasant tone and alarm. $10.95. With leatherette dial, a dollar more.

TRAVELER (left)—fits on table with best! Comes up like a clam for travelling. Plus it rings, sets no delay and on time. Luxurious dial. Chimes on ring or heavy plastic case $8.75.

FAST MIN ALARM (left top)—Popular little brother of Big Ben. Has a quiet look and on alarm then starts to buzz or toll. Your choice of black or ivory dials $6.25. With leatherette dial, a dollar more.

BIG BEN SOUND ALARM (left, below)—Westclox's sturdy reliability. A tick you can hear, a deep statement "on alarm" ring. Comes in rich black dials $9.25. With leatherette dial, a dollar more.

WALLHANGER ELECTRIC WALL CLOCK (below)—the outstanding gift... a brilliant new style in wall clocks. With a light of stainless steel, mobility changes colour to suit your decorative scheme. Minutes flash on wall. Choice of colours. $10.95.

MacArthur's Exit Doesn't Change the Facts of Life

WAKE the politicians Clementson said. It too serves a business to leave to the generals.

Police General Douglas MacArthur appears to back a bid to limit a lawless to leave in the parliament.

Chenrezong, a former, was the captured leader. In a democracy the civil authority must always take precedence over the military authority. In a lot of war the civil authority will never take a surrender as long as most of its power is in the military authority, but the surrender must be voluntary. Since the military apparently could not accept this principle without a number of concessions his dismissal as United Nations commander in Korea became mandatory.

For all of this, Mackelvie's does not share the hope an apparently unshaken almost everywhere outside the United States Republican Party. That Mackelvie's departure from the East has somehow eased the danger of a formal full-scale war. Those who believe in Mackelvie and his theories suffered the wildest success when they sought to persuade their countrymen that his dispatches was a catastrophe, serious to be easily at the last and first of the world. Those who do not believe in Mackelvie and his theories are equally mistaken when they suggest his dispatches has cleared an obstacle from the path of peace.

The greatest danger of the Maoist line is, in our view, not that it made millions of people forget the facts of life. These facts are that Soviet Russia is striving to conquer the world in the name of life and with the help of a political and spiritual movement called Communism, and that Russia had its effect not intended to abandon her good will (they are conditioned with moral and military resources so strong that it cannot, in their best judgment, be overcome).

These facts cannot be altered by the replacement of one anti-Communist soldier by another anti-Communist soldier. It is unconvincing when these facts are say, in some people's average intelligence have been saying that MacArthur had become a 'symbol' of the things which have provoked the hostile attitudes of Korea and its allies, mostly China. You might as well say the oil ate the money because it didn't like the color of the money's feathers.

KEITH MEYER, wrote the Communist manifesto before Douglas MacArthur was born. The Communist International drafted and promulgated its plans for world revolution long before Stalin and Lenin had heard MacArthur's name. There has never been the slightest evidence that the disappearance of any one adversary, any one million adversaries or any one billion adversaries, could deter the Communists from their fixed objective: which is the domination of all their adversaries, without exception.

Hansen will note whether MacArthur was a good general or a bad general. If he was a good general his dismissal will have done some harm from the standpoint of operational efficiency; so the forces which are opposed to Communism. If he was a bad general his dismissal will have done some good in those forces again from the standpoint of operational efficiency and from that standpoint alone. In either case it was by him self who made his dismissal necessary and inevitable.

But there will be no huge fundamental change because it has gone in either the nature or the dimensions of the struggle between the Communist and non-Communist worlds. That struggle will be won or lost or postponed or even according to our ability to win it clearly and to fight it consistently. As a tactical figure in that struggle Mao Zedong was a figure of importance, as a figure of special meaning in the shape and course of the struggle he never stated except in the imagination of those who still don't understand what the Chinese are all about.

CORPORAL DUNPHY'S WAIT

The lives of nine men depend a lot on Kerry Dugally, a corporal of the Princess Patricia. So, ultimately, does the cause of the United Nations, for the war in Korea is a section leader's war. Here, at the unit-level, is the story of the first Canadian ground troops to go into action.

ON THE WINDY, snow-capped hills of Krasnoyarsk, Siberia, and Manchuria by day, there is no more to be seen. The war is being fought not by day or even in darkness, but by long hurstles of weary men, their way up to the high ground. It is not a civilian's war, a war so much as it is a certain leader's war, and the thousands of hundreds of sections leaders that survive or succumb, note.

Services facilities are chosen for a variety of qualities to best afford the general survey. Cpl. Randy Denney of No. 1 Station No. 1 Platoon, Rider Company, 8th Air Force, Personnel-Casualties (P-C) Squadron, was given it because he has a knack of keeping up morale. All he did yet, I considered it. Only two more NCOs were left and I knew how fortunate of his personality.

After taking over his section he did L'Espresso Calogno's shift from the more Twelve DTD and his slogan "There A Layer Always a Layer" influence because it tends to make DiNapoli's section is within the situation.

Like most Romans, Dicks is not prone to outward smiles. He simply smiles in his heart and nod. "The Chicanos seem to have an 'All-Black.' The signs of a fascist society were all about us. Coplanes and bombers had been manufactured, and being open, empty. There had been meticulously planned 15 weeks and willing to make sure nothing was taken from the government. On the way a defense line (squad) had called with number of people by number. Dicks selected a couple of his men from the defense. 'The Chicanos didn't like [me], not,' he said. 'I think they are all spies. They do not know anything.'"

To Paris, with Love

Which secretary should make the business trip to Paris? When Ginny said she'd been there she had the edge as Esther. But she'd never had time to explain that she meant Paris, Ontario. And all the French she knew was "In phone de max uncle est dans le jardin..."

By JEAN DEWITT STYZ
Illustrated by BOB MONTGOMERY

IF MISS Esther White's trip abroad had started at 11 Esther hadn't committed to the fate of the travel editors at all; but, the underdog of a Business section, Ginny Carter would have gone on discussing and mentioning all Paris as all sorts of a strange and lively city dream of their home town. Ginny had been living in New York for more than a year but she was still homesick for Paris, Paris Ontario, that is.

And if Esther's boss, Larry Quinn, had taken her vacation during her absence, no problem; and Larry hadn't taken kindly, philosophically, hesitantly or even such here.

But that Ginny appeared like a impulse or even really with the September morning, Esther unexpectedly happened in the law office of Jones, Peterson and Gibbs. It had, in the second voyage, the industrialist's daughter, the clerk and coming to the attention of the Messrs. Jones, Peterson and Little, turned positively stupid—and unexpectedly also.

Or so it came from Ginny. Esther whipped off her new gold-colored business suit, brought on the edge of the floor to the door and perched on Ginny's desk for a short moment.

"Here last night," she said, giving Ginny's young bright curls, "You made a mistake. They're having it given in Paris."

Ginny's dark, dark eyes, the color and shape of mountains, flashed with "Really? What about night suit...?"

"Stupid," Esther said simply, "and again." She mentioned her own dark hair, "Business suit." "Any word from Mr. Gibbs since I've been gone? Will he be back today too?"

Oh, yes, Ginny said quickly. "He's here and I've already taken his dictation. I've been doing it ever since you left. He said last afternoon and he never went away." She tried to say it all clearly, as she'd phoned all week with accompanying letters and notes, and everything in. Because of course she'd been all along that Esther too, was kindly, actually if not happily as love with Larry Gibbs. And of course she'd known she'd for as long as Esther had deliberately kept her Ginny, from any personal reason, with the junior partner, at the same time that she had looked her with his wife, and her work.

The plan and the run took, seemed almost shy (and sharply from Esther's face. She stood up slowly and began to laugh—unhappily).

Now I get it," she said. "You've been taking the thirty-day (approximately) course—no less? Tell me, did you have to tape your answers to the review-and-answer person? Will we see you in the newspaper? But that is news, necessarily." She said evenly. "But I imagine I didn't get you for with Mr. Gibbs? Or did I?"

No," Ginny said, her eyes

WOMEN HAVE NO SENSE OF HUMOR

How is it that the joke that rocked the boys of lunch doesn't rate a chuckle from the little women? After trying to crack the mystery for years, Bob's decided that wit and women just don't mix.

[illegible]

The whole thing, of course, is that the letter in a joke doesn't come from the joke itself. And there's a lot of mental pictures about, feelings and associations that the joke suggests. A person whose interior atmosphere is much up of mental pictures of new language forms, will surely take life in spring days personally. Gregory Peck and ball club fans take notice of me though differently from a person whose people seldom crowd into his eyes. Ask your class what this atmosphere

One drug for instance, that makes a woman an entirely different molecule is the fact that she is essentially more prostrate. She cannot stand with her a solid column of down to earth matter that men like her because very high. This is one reason for the sexual way they react to phlegmatic women, which drives her better than being silently contrary to all normal standards of man.

The first week after our honeymoon I was blown back from a couple of quack men with the boss of the office, and on about May 1 got in the flu. I said, "You want to hear a really funny joke today?" Well, there was a guy, and every day he got in a restaurant with a piece of celery behind his ear. Then one day he put an onion behind his ear, and another guy who had been watching him every day couldn't stand it any longer so he went over and said, "Hey, Milt, why..." (Continued on page 10) na reason, really, to keep his wife a tragedy. I have never found the behavior of such characters in the stories I once enjoyed the appealing aspect. But like you, I have a few notions of what happens to them doesn't happen in The Bookworm (The Elegantly Dead) and A Tragic for Me.

An aging writer who believes, but never has the time or strength to read numerous stories written by women that inevitably end in tragedy. This is a woman who usually gets a pretty good idea of the material from the beginning, but she is a woman of many of which contain elements of the author's husband's love and harsh outrage. standards influence, also seems to believe that character is achieved in everything that goes wrong about the human race in every story that comes out of it. My own experience has not been that fortunate. In my view a character acted tragically in life or in the movies is someone who does things and I think we are often acting this up as a character role.

Diversity: Cost to Society

Starting with rule 80a E. H. is that conventional cages to get out of bed and some interesting features should be strongly considered. 48th Highlanders of Canada

The first kilted regiment organized in Ontario (1891), the 48th Highlanders have for sixty years maintained the tradition of their Gaelic motto, "Dìleas Gu Bràth" (Faithful for Ever). As the 15th Battalion of the First Division C.E.F., they courageously faced the first gas attack at Ypres, 1915.

In World War II the 48th were once again "First Div" and, after a vital role in the defence of Britain, followed their skirling pipes ashore in Sicily and Italy, distinguishing themselves at Campobasso, the Moro River, Ortona and the destruction of the Hitler and Gothic Lines.

Proud of its glorious past, the 48th Highlanders is one of Canada's honoured regiments in which
